The Oxford Review of Economic Policy is a refereed journal which is published quarterly. The journal comprises an assessment and a number of articles on current issues in economic policy. Each issue concentrates on a particular theme. Articles are presented in a non-technical manner, aimed at a wide audience including government, business, and policymakers as well as academics and students. The journal has its own World Wide Web site which is located at <http://www.oxrep.oupjournals.org>.

The Oxford Review of Economic Policy welcomes submissions to future issues and comments on past papers. The themes of the next four issues are as follows:

The WTO and Multilateral Trade Cooperation; Intellectual Property; Housing Markets; and Climate Change.

Anyone wishing to submit an article for inclusion in a particular issue should normally send it to the editorial office at least six months before the scheduled publication of the issue. Submissions should be no longer than 9,000 words.

The Oxford Review of Economic Policy is abstracted and indexed in ABI/Inform, British Humanities Index, Geographical Abstracts, Human Geography, International Development Abstracts, Journal of Economic Literature/EconLit, PAIS, Recent Research in Economics, ISI: Social Sciences Citation Index, Current Contents/Social and Behavioral Sciences, Research Alert, Social Sci Search, RePEc (Research in Economic Papers).
